A GOOD STORY

WINNING A BRIDE.

"Give you my daughter? You!"

A God-fearing man was this father. He had firm faith in a doctrinal institution, engineered by the synod of which he, Orville Manor, Esq., was one of the strongest pillars.

Was not this man entitled to the special beneficence of his Creator, and the respect of humble humanity? Yet here stands an audacious youth, who has apparently nothing in the wide world to recommend him but the testimonials which secured him the position of entry clerk in the wholesale house of Manor & Co., and a handsome face lighted up with a pair of dark eyes, glowing with energy and ambition. And this youth had asked him for his daughter. A just anger reddened the usually imperturbable brow of Manor pere, and a scornful curve shaped his lips as he adjusted the gold-rimmed spectacles on his nose and repeated:

"Give you my daughter! You! Truly 'fools enter boldly where angels fear to tread.' Have you any other request to make, young man?"

"No, sir!"

Orville Manor, Esq., turned his back upon the daring young man, and resumed his reading; his face was again dispassionate. The other remained standing, but the fine face changed color, his breath came hard and fast, the exquisitely-curved nostrils of a decidedly aristocratic nose showed the spirit of emotion, not unlike the temper of a thoroughbred animal under the bit of a trainer. With an effort truly admirable the "rising ire" was controlled, and the lips beneath his soft and luxuriant mustache became firmly set.

Ten minutes this silence lasted. The young man stood his ground as if he had become an automatic statue.

The old gentleman began to show restlessness again, and after a vain endeavor to command the emotion ruling him, he turned abruptly, exclaiming:

"Have you nothing more profitable to employ your mind than staring at my back, sir? What are you waiting for?"

"Your answer."

With slow and majestic mien, and a countenance beaming with patience, this father of a daughter walked to the door, opened it, and, pointing to the outer entrance, remarked:

"This is my answer. Is it comprehensible?"

The young aspirant for a rich man's daughter bowed. His face was ghastly pale, but his step was firm, his head haughtily erect, and the indignant parent was somewhat impressed with the nobility characterizing his annihilation as he turned from the door so cruelly closed upon himself and his hopes.

A perfect gem of a room was this apartment. The floor was covered with a Turkish velvet carpet of deepest crimson, the furniture was of carved walnut and embossed velvet of crimson on gold-colored satin, the windows were draped with softest lace under the luxuriant wealth of red and gold brocure, held to the richly-frescoed ceiling by heavy gold-mounted ambrequins. Mirrors and paintings clad the walls on every side, and marble busts and statues were reflected everywhere. Tables in rare mosaic were covered with late magazines and books. The air was perfumed as if each article exhaled a fragrance of its own, and the first sensation on entering was almost a feeling of sensuous languor, especially to one unaccustomed to the perfumed warmth of this semi-darkened atmosphere.

The young lady reclining on one of the crimson lounges seemed a part of its natural belongings. Her features were of the American type, but her eyes, covered by their blue-veined, black fringed lids, were Orientally large and of a deep violet blue. And this lovely creature, in her white silken and pink satin-lined wrapper, reared to breathe indolence and make circumstance subserve to every caprice, this favorite of the gods was the daughter to whom her father's clerk aspired.

A servant in blue livery entered noiselessly with a letter on a gold-lined salver, presented it to the young lady and retired again.

With a flush of pleasure she pressed the little document to her lips and read:

My Beautiful Treasure: The contemplated interview is over. I shall not distress you with particulars. It was not at all romantic and did not end in a tragedy or partake of the farcical "Bless you, my boy; take her and be happy;" but your father hinted rather strongly that it was advisable for my presumptuous self to journey the pathway of life without—his daughter. I differ from him in his views on that subject, and I want your permission to call and talk the matter over at the earliest possible moment. I wish no clandestine meeting. My love is honest, my motives worthy of respectful consideration, and the assurance of your love makes me bold. Oh, my beautiful darling! the rapture of this conviction fills me with joy too blissful to be human, but it is true, sweet, for I have held you to my throbbing heart. I have felt your thrill in answer to my passionate kisses, and my pleading heart has listened to the melody that whispered of the love you have blessed me with. Give you up, sweet! No ice, nor metal, nor heaven nor hell shall keep me from you, if my love says come!

SIDNEY HARRISON.

There was a fire of determination in the young beauty's eyes as she went to an escritoir of ebony and gold and took therefrom a dainty, cream-tinted scented sheet of paper, and wrote thereon one magic word, "Come!" inclosed and sealed it, rang a tiny silver bell, which brought a servant, to whom she gave directions about delivering the letter to its address without delay. Then she went down the elegantly furnished hall and stairway into the library, where her father was engaged with his papers, and gliding up to him, in a most childlike, winning manner, she bent over him and kissed his cheeks and mouth, and then perched herself laughingly upon his knees.

"Well, Pearl," said he, tenderly caressing this idol of his heart; "does this mean some new-fangled gew-gaw, or do you really love your old father?"

"My old father, indeed! Stop slandering him, sir, or I'll bite you! No, I do not come on a money-begging expedition. I want to talk sense."

"Bless me, child, what new novel have you been reading? Imagine yourself come to the sense-talking season."

"I have not been reading novels. I am studying Herbert Spencer."

A frown darkened the benign countenance, and he replied coldly:

"More heterodox nonsense! Pearl, I do not approve——"

"I know you don't, pa, and I'll give it up to oblige you. But there is something you can give me, pa, now I come to think of it, and you will oblige me greatly."

"I never refuse my pet anything, do I?"

"No, but this once you might, dear pa, just because it is such a very ordinary, every-day affair that I want."

"What is it, you trifler?"

"Only a husband," she replied meekly.

"My dear Pearl, you do not know what you are saying. A husband!"

"Yes, sir."

"And, if I may ask, have you picked out the unlucky individual?"

"Oh, yes, pa, he is already cut and dried, ready for use."

"My child, you are jesting on a very serious matter."

"But, pa, I am not jesting. I do not care about having the husband all in a hurry today or tomorrow, but I want you to promise him some future day, when you get tired of my teasing and extravagance, and so forth, you know, pa."

Pa began to act restlessly. His face became very dark and unpromising. In fact, a great light dawned upon his mind, and as it broadened his brow darkened more and more. He looked keenly into her eyes, until her gaze drooped beneath his hard scrutiny, and she whispered appealingly:

"Pa, do not be so cross with me—but—but—he will be here directly."

"Who, girl?" was the excited exclamation.

"Sidney Harrison."

At this instant the library door opened and the gentleman himself entered.

The young lady was at his side in a flash, and placing her hand on his arm and lifting her head proudly, defiantly, said:

"In life or death, father, this is my heart's choice."

There was sublime adoration in the look given her by the young man as he advanced to the thoroughly nonplussed and outraged father and exclaimed:

"Give her to me! Full well I realize my own unworth——"

"Silence! 'Tis well that you have still enough of manly spirit to acknowledge your unfitness to become the husband of my daughter. You, a clerk in my employ, on a salary scarcely commensurate with the requirements of a beggar?"

"Why not increase it, pa? One might be led to imagine it was a disgrace to be in my dear old father's employ, from the way you emphasize the fact," Pearl remarked, with a touch of roguish bravery.

"Oh, heavens, why am I thus tried?" the old gentleman cried in feeble desperation. Then suddenly growing wrathy again, he pointed sternly to the door.

"For the second time, young man, I command you to depart—and be pleased to take notice—let it be the last time. I have forborne to treat you as you deserve; forbearance may cease to be a Christian virtue, remember."

"Father, do you know aught against his character? He has been in your employ a year. Has he proved inefficient or unworthy of the respect due an honorable gentleman?" The girl's noble face was grand in its pleading yet dignified womanhood.

"I have no complaint against him."

"Then for once my father has fallen short in his judgment and his duty to one of God's creatures, like himself, inasmuch as he refuses to him an opportunity to state his case, before a judgment shall be spoken."

"Pearl, you are insolent. Do you forget whom you are addressing?"

"Forgive, forgive me, but oh, father, do not forget that in turning this man from your door you also close your heart and home against me. We have plighted our troth, and through good and ill fortune I shall cling to him, so help me God!"

Solemnly the closing words were uttered. A long silence followed. Then the old gentleman said calmly, icily:

"Go to your room, ungrateful, thankless child."

"Not until you have given Sidney a hearing. Father, dear father, be just."

"Go. I will send for you when you are wanted."

"Now, Mr. Harrison, I will hear you. Be brief."

"Thank you, Mr. Manor. Two years ago I met your daughter while on a visit to a mutual friend of ours in St. Louis. I was charmed at the first meeting, and fell desperately in love before she returned home. She had honored me with her confidence and friendship before she left, and also became acquainted with my parents and sisters, and there seemed to be a general expression of mutual happiness in this intercourse. We corresponded for several months, and your daughter consented to receive my addresses if I would make your acquaintance in the manner that I have, by accepting a position in your employ and win your regard from that humble office. My father is fully cognizant of and approved of the plan from the beginning, and I have his letter to show you that if I succeed, he will not only be happy to welcome my wife, but establish me in business of my own, or give me fifty thousand dollars to invest as I may see fit. This is my story in brief. Time will develop everything satisfactorily to you. My father retired from active business some time since, and contemplates taking my mother, who is an invalid, and my sisters, to Europe shortly, and they will be in the city the latter part of this week to await what my sisters are pleased to term the result of my romantic exploit in winning a wife. I have failed only in winning your consent. Will you reconsider your disapproval?"

Various changes had passed over the listener's face during the recital, leaving it strangely flushed as he rang the bell and told the servant answering it to "request Miss Pearl to come to the library."

She stood in the open door one moment, then, with a joyous cry bounded into her father's arms. The old gentleman led her to the waiting lover, and with tremulous emotion said:

Bank Bills Made Into Images.

The destruction of old bank bills too dilapidated for further use has an almost pathetic side when one stops to think how much of good—one tries to forget the evil—these thin bits of paper have accomplished in their time. The destruction takes place in a room in the United States Treasury building. There is a small table in the center of the room on which is the jumble of torn and soiled bills. Through two holes in the floor may be seen the cylinders, about the size of locomotive boilers into which the bills are sent through a large funnel, the Treasury officials prodding down the mass when it becomes clogged.

When the last slip of paper has been crowded into a cylinder a mixture of lime and soda is poured over the entire mass, a cover is clapped over the apparatus, each member of the committee of destruction assisting to make sure the fastenings. Steam is then turned on and the cylinder set in motion. When the bills have become thoroughly macerated the pulp is drawn off and taken to a paper machine, where it is made into sheets of paper and afterward sold. Someone suggested using some of the pulp to make little fancy images, and the idea was adopted, so that the daintiest little figures imaginable made from the historical substance may be bought in Washington.—Buffalo, (N.Y.,) Express.

THE TARIFF VIEW.

AMERICAN PROTECTIVE TARIFF LEAGUE'S IDEA OF McKINLEY'S ELECTION.

Free Traders' Efforts to Switch the Issue Were Useless—Protection Won the Fight in Western States—Our Future Prosperity Assured.

Regarding the Presidential election the opinion of the American Protective Tariff League, of which President-Elect McKinley is an active member, is voiced by the "American Economist" as follows:

The victory for McKinley and protection has been a great victory in every sense of the word. It is not only a victory of great majorities, but it is a victory for a great principle. It is not a victory for any particular section, but a victory for the whole country. It is not a victory for any particular class of men or for any party, but a victory for the whole American people. The victory is only what every one expected. In a square battle between protection and free trade there could be but one result and that result a triumph for the American system of protection. It is for this reason that William J. Bryan and all his free trade supporters have so strenuously endeavored to switch the issue of the campaign away from the question of the tariff.

But with Mr. Bryan's free trade record open to the public, with the great "Apostle of Protection" as leader on the other side; with partial free trade already casting its deadly blight upon our industrial life; with that product of ignorance and incompetency, of sectional discrimination and individual favoritism—the debt producing, industry destroying Gorman bill as the law of the land, the dominant and decisive issue was bound to be the tariff. Much as the free traders did to befog the issue, they could not change it. That being so, the result was a foregone conclusion. There are none so blind as those who will not see, but there were none so blind that they could not foresee the coming of the political tidal wave, which sweeps the country back to prosperity, back to its prosperity of four years ago.

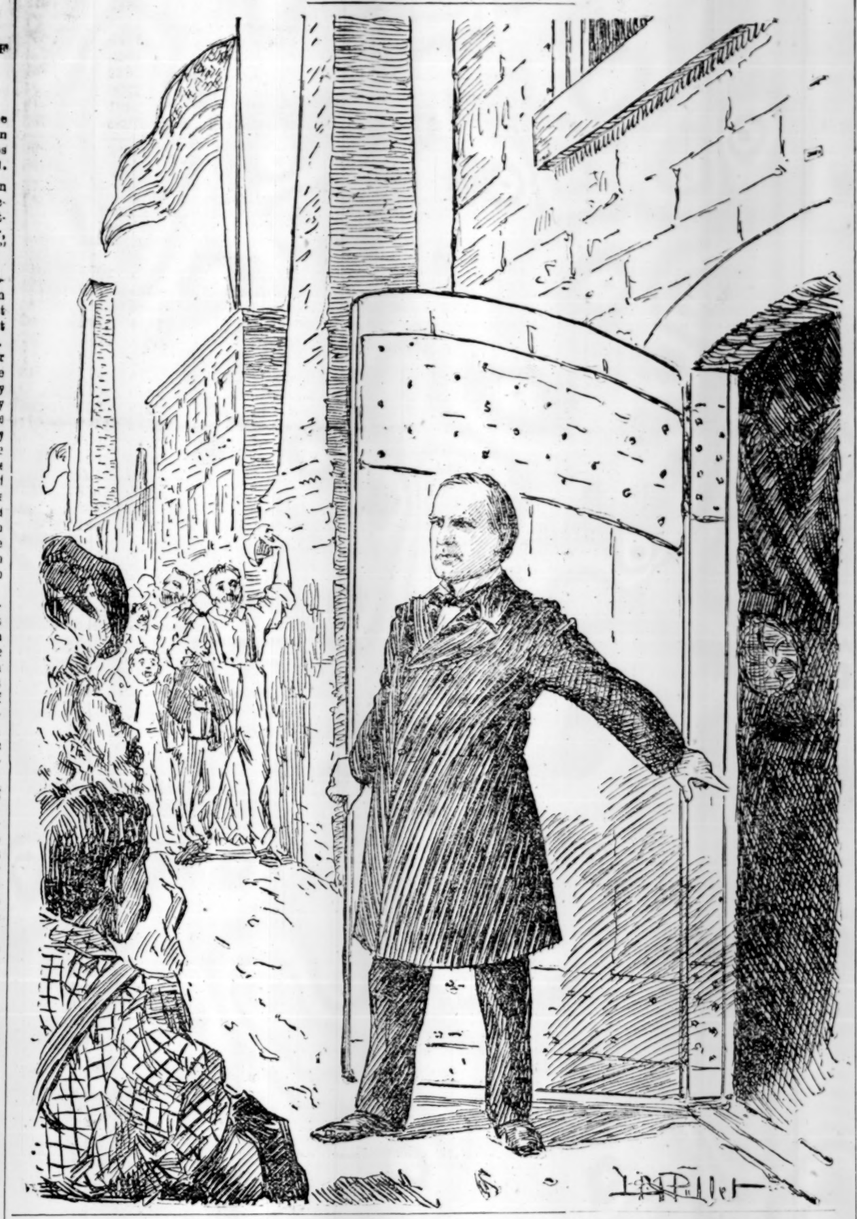

The briefest actual trial of free trade, or of any approach to it, has always sufficed to turn the people back from any leanings toward that economic fallacy. The disastrous experience of the last four years, under this free trade administration, has thoroughly sickened the American people of that policy. In 1892, after more than 30 years of protection, we stood at the very pinnacle of prosperity. The triumph of the free trade party in that year sent us down to the lowest depths of industrial depression. The four years since 1892 have been one long history of hard times, of disaster and distress. No part of the country has been left unscathed. The South has suffered with the North and the East with the West. No man has been spared. The farmer has seen the value of his farm and of his stock decrease, his market destroyed and his crops left unsold upon his hands; the merchant has seen his goods grow dusty on his shelves; the manufacturer has been forced to close his mill; the wage earner, whose whole capital is in his power to labor, has had the chance to labor taken from him; the capitalist has suffered with the rest. There is not a person in this country who has not helped to pay, either by actual loss or by sacrifice of comfort, the tremendous cost of this trial of free trade.

"Truth has to be taught. Lies find their own way," said Speaker Reed. The free trade liar was abroad in 1892. The provisions of the McKinley law were grossly misrepresented, history was distorted, figures juggled and facts suppressed. The lies found their own way and won the election of 1892 for free trade. But, during the last four years, the American people have had experience for a teacher and the truth has been taught. Each drop in wages, each workman seeking for work, each closed factory, each business failure, each insolvent bank, each free soup house, has helped to teach the lesson of truth. The deficit in the National Treasury and the issues of bonds have helped on the work. The lessons of these four recent years will not be forgotten for a generation, at least, and we hope never.

The victory for protection that has just been won is not the result of a sudden whim, or of blind reliance or unsubstantial claims, or from any desire to see what the party of protection will do, but it is the result of deliberate conviction based on experience. All that this great victory means, we have not yet had time to appreciate, but something of its meaning we know and all the people of the country know. As to the past, it means that the American people have grown tired of keeping foreigners at work while American workmen sit in idleness. It means that they have grown tired of letting the foreign producer have the American market as a free gift. It means that they have grown tired of closed workshops and silent machinery. It means that they have grown tired of a National deficit; that they have grown tired of bond issues. It means that they have grown tired of business stagnation and industrial depression. It means that they have grown tired of hard times. It means that they have grown tired of free trade and of all its train of evils. It means that they have seen the folly and the hollowness of all the free trade rant about "tariff taxation;" that they have found out that "free raw materials" is a snare and a delusion; that they have learned that "the markets of the world" is only a catch word to deceive the unthinking and the unwary. It means that they have learned the value of our home market. It means that they have learned that the prosperity of the American people depends on the employment of American labor. It means that they have come to believe with William McKinley, that nothing from abroad can be cheap to the American people, which means idleness among ourselves. It means that they have learned that "a revenue tariff levels down" and that "a protective tariff levels up."

As to the future, it means business, it means confidence. It means an end to idle capital and idle workmen. It means the American market for the American producer. It means work for American labor. It means better wages. It means prosperity for American homes. It means that the American system of protection to American industries, the system which has never yet failed to bring prosperity and which never will fail to do so, is to be the permanent policy of the American people.

OPEN THE MILLS.

THAT CROWN OF THORNS.

THE HAND OF LABOR.

Before election.

After election.

Therefore It Declined.

Of all industries, a country's navigation interests most need protection, yet with amazing inconsistency they are almost the only interests which, for the last forty years, the United States has neglected to protect.

The name of McKinley is not one that inspires very agreeable feelings on this side of the Atlantic.—The Leeds (Eng.) Mercury, June 10, 1896.

Importance of Agriculture.

There are seven and three-quarter millions of people in the United States engaged in agriculture, more than one-eighth of our entire population, far exceeding in number those engaged in any other profession, numbering twice those employed in manufactures, and seven times greater than those employed in conducting trade and transportation. Therefore, you constitute the largest body engaged in any single calling in the United States, while the value of the agricultural products of this country exceeds that of any other Nation in the world. —Hon. William McKinley.

What the Farmers Did.

The farmers voted for McKinley and protection because they want a tariff policy that will open our mills, thus providing employment for American wage earners and increasing the demand for American farm products.

Railroads Under Democracy.

Year.	Total mileage.	Increase over previous year.
1890	208,612.55	.....
1891	216,149.14	7,536.59
1892	222,351.35	6,202.21
1893	230,137.27	7,785.92
1894	233,533.67	3,396.40
1895	236,894.26	3,360.59

During 1894 and 1895, under the Democratic Administration, the average construction of new roads has been 2300 miles a year—almost 5000 miles less than the yearly average under the Republican Administration. This shrinkage, when railroad managements had no confidence in the progress of the country under Democracy, represents a tremendous loss of employment to labor engaged in building the roads.

The American Voter Put His Foot

The Wage Earner's Work.

The American wage earner voted for McKinley and all Republican Congressmen, thus assurring himself of a restoration of the policy of protection, which will make all the factory bells ring again and give employment to labor at old-time wages.

IPAYING THE NAVY.

Cost of That Branch of the Government for Last Year.

According to the annual report of Paymaster General Stewart, the cost of maintaining the United States Navy last year, exclusive of any increase to it, and the permanent improvements of yards and docks, was $15,494,862. The money and material spent in arming and equipping the naval militia, not including material loaned to the States, was $27,186. The present system of concentrating naval stores in one general stock has worked well, and this account, which formerly grew larger year by year, has in the past four years been reduced from $11,000,000 to $7,000,000. It is said that the system of supplying stores to vessels has not kept pace with the growth of the navy, and the variety of the stores are such that the facilities, ample twenty years ago, do not meet present requirements. It is urgently recommended that suitable barges be provided at navy yards to deliver stores promptly to vessels. It is understood that the establishment of a reserve fleet is now in contemplation by the department, and that special storehouses for the stores pertaining to such vessels will be part of the plan. The Paymaster-General says that if this should be done the department will be able not only to take better care of the stores, but also to put better vessels into commission much more rapidly than at present.

A TRAMP SAVES A TRAIN.

Gives a Signal to Stop and the Wreckers Shoot Him in the Leg.

A tramp named G. C. Bynum proved himself a hero a few nights ago and saved a fast express train and probably many lives. Bynum overheard a gang of men in a box car plotting to wreck the west-bound St. Louis express on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railway in a lonely stretch of country east of Washington, Ind.

The express car, it is reported, contained a large amount of money. A heavy charge of nitro-glycerine and dynamite was placed upon the track in such a way that it would explode when struck by the engine.

Bynum said nothing about the matter, fearing the police would think him crazy. He had no way to signal the express train, which he knew would be due within a short time. It was some distance to the nearest switch, but he made his way there, and pulled off the signal light.

Then he went to the place where the alleged dynamite was placed. His signal was seen by the approaching train in time. The train wreckers, who were in ambush, also saw the signal, and a volley of shots was fired at the tramp. He was wounded in the leg and a shot through his hat grazed his head.

After the explosives were removed from the track the train came to Washington, Ind., bringing the tramp. The 500 people who were on the train crowded about him and praised him. Later a subscription was taken up for his benefit.

Bynum's home is in Baltimore, Md. The Washington police are working on a theory that he was one of the gang of robbers, but that, as the train approached, his heart failed him and he gave the warning signal to the engineer. As he did so, his confederates shot at him, the police think.

STOLE OUT OF A TURKISH PORT.

British Skipper Took Advice From a Yankee Cruiser and Saved Seven Armenians.

Captain Fisher, of the British freight steamship Boyne, appeared before Collector Kilbreth to explain why his ship arrived at the Port of New York two days ago without manifests of her cargo, the absence of which renders him liable to a fine of $500. The captain said that he sailed from the port of Smyrna on October 11 without waiting for clearance papers, because two days before he sailed seven Armenians had come aboard and begged that he bring them to this country, because they were in danger of assassination by the Turks. He took them on board, and declined to give them up, he says, upon the demand of the authorities in Smyrna, and appealed to the only warship in the harbor, an Italian man-of-war for support. The warship would not meddle, but the United States cruiser Minneapolis arrived while he was in this dilemma, and under the advice of the officers of the Minneapolis he says he sneaked out of the harbor. The manifests were sent by mail by the agents of the ship in Smyrna, and the case has been referred to the Treasury Department.

The Armenians were on board when the vessel arrived. Their names are G. Gorgiadi, twenty-three years old; D. Raffafades, twenty-six years old; D. Del Shanoodin, nineteen years old; A. Shishmani, forty-two years old, and his wife and two daughters.

TENTH FLOOR HOLD-UP.

Chicago Robbers in the Masonic Temple Gag Proprietor and Clerk.

J. Herrmann & Co.'s jewelry store, on the tenth floor of the Masonic Temple, Chicago, was entered by two armed robbers late Monday afternoon, who secured about $5000 worth of diamonds, a gold watch and chain, and $100 in money and escaped.

Mr. Herrmann, proprietor, and C. A. McGurty, a clerk, were the only occupants of the room when the robbers entered. They were prepared to close up the day's business when they were confronted with revolvers. The outlaws ordered them into one corner of the room and then bound and gagged both.

While one robber watched over them with his pistol his companion rifled the safe of its contents and slipped a quantity of gems into his pocket. The robbers then fled. It was several minutes before the proprietor and the clerk could release themselves, and the robbers had made good their escape.

FALL RIVER IS HAPPY ALL OVER.

The Biggest Political Parade and Celebration the Town Ever Had.

A great political parade took place at Fall River, Mass., to mark the election of McKinley and Hobart. From 7000 to 10,000 men, women, boys and girls participated, while seven or eight times that number looked on and cheered themselves hoarse. There were twelve bands and four drum corps in line. Mill agents, treasurers, superintendents and overseers walked side by side with operatives in all departments of the cotton mills.

Two thousand dollars' worth of red fire was burned along the line, and nearly every house and business block was illuminated.

A BABY STONED TO DEATH.

Attacked by Two Boys and Left to Die in a Pool a Few Steps From Home.

The two-year-old child of Albert Farrell, of Forest City, Penn., was found dead in a shallow pool within twenty feet of the house. The child had been playing in the pool, and it was thought at first to have been drowned. Later investigation showed several bruises on the skull, looking as though they had been made with stones. Now a little girl has thrown light on the death. She said she saw two boys throwing stones at the child, and heard the child cry when struck.

VENEZUELA HAS A NEW ALLY.

Colombia Views With Apprehension an Alliance With Ecuador.

It is stated semi-officially that a treaty, offensive and defensive, has been negotiated by representatives of the Governments of Venezuela and Ecuador. The treaty, it is declared, has been already signed.

The Postmaster-General's Budget.

Postmaster-General Wilson has submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury his estimates for the Postoffice Department for the fiscal year to end on June 30, 1898. The First Assistant Postmaster-General's office requires $43,542,500; the Second Assistant Postmaster-General's office, $52,224,500; Third Assistant's office, $1,359,100; Fourth Assistant's office, $68,311. As the expenditures for the service for 1898 are estimated at $97,515,411, and the revenues expected for the same year are placed at $86,227,076, there will be an estimated deficiency of $1,288,335.

Mrs. Castle Released.

Mrs. Castle, the wealthy woman of San Francisco, Cal., who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for shoplifting in London, was released by the Home Government on condition that her husband bring her back to this country as soon as possible.

Victim of His Own Gun.

John Rogers, a coachman living near White Plains, N. Y., killed a laborer and then attempted to kill Henry Weiss. As he was running after the latter he slipped and his gun was discharged. He was instantly killed.

Out of the Common Run.

The number of persons to the square mile in England is placed at 480; in the United States at seventeen.

Mrs. Letitia Loretta Walker, of Steubenville, Ohio, has been a widow for seventy-one years. Her age is 101.

A female cod of fifteen pounds weight, recently examined by the British Fish Warden, was found to have a roe containing 4,872,000 eggs.

Along Butter Creek, Oregon, has appeared a vine that when above the ground will leave the root and cling to any vegetation to which it can attach itself and through which it can draw nourishment. The seed is said to have been brought there with alfalfa seed from Salt Lake.

DEAD PROPHETS.

The late election has ruined the reputations of many political prophets and should drive them out of the business. Prophesying is a dangerous business even for those who have the gift of second sight, and for those who do not possess the gift even of first sight it is extra hazardous. Of course, a prophet who makes predictions to order and supplies what his customers demand gets some prestige out of it and enjoys the happiness of giving present satisfaction, but he incurs the risk of having his customers turn and rend him if his rosy predictions do not come true. The sportsman in the story who aimed his gun at a moving object so as to hit it if it were a deer and miss it if it were a calf suggests a safe theory of political prophesying, but the details of the theory are hard to master.

Among the political prophets whose professional reputations have been hopelessly ruined by the election, Chairman Jones, of the National Democratic Committee, is easily first. He made a greater number of absurd, ridiculous, idiotic and impossible prophecies than any other person who ever engaged in business. Jones not merely claimed the earth and the fullness thereof; he claimed every thing in the heevens above and in the waters under the earth. Mistaking self-confidence for foresight and bumptiousness for genius he has make the most absurd political prophesies on record. The election has scattered them to the winds and leaves him, prophetically speaking, a wreck.

In the same plight and scarcely less badly wrecked are the Chairmen of the various Democratic State Committees. They have kept close to Jones and they have gone down with him. The country is full of such wrecks. It is a regular Golgotha of dead Bryanite prophets.

BETTER TIMES COMING.

The election of McKinley has lifted an immense burden of anxiety from the minds of all the millions engaged in trade and industry and of the financial and business world in general. It has restored confidence and that is bringing a business revival. The thousands of orders made conditioned on the election are beginning to be filled and thousands of other orders are being given.

From Maine to California come reports of old industries resuming work and of new ones about to be established. Every wide-awake business man knows that "better times" are on the way, and is preparing therefor. From almost every quarter comes the cheering news of more work, more activity, more business. It is just what the CAROLINIAN predicted.

WILL KEEP THE SILVER DOLLAR ALL RIGHT.

Senator Teller predicts that the Republican party will do nothing for silver in the next four years, but he is all wrong. The Republican party will continue to keep the silver dollar firmly established on a reputable hundred-cent basis, thus insuring for it the respect and confidence of the business world and thereby demonstrating to the country that practical bimetalism reaches its broadest scope under Republican policy. Mr. Teller should be more cheerful. Things are not half as blue as they seem to him.

Most of the well-meaning but misguided gentlemen who now talk about renewing the free coinage fight in 1900 will soon be apologizing to themselves for the part they took in the affair this year. There is nothing like the wheels of prosperity to roll the wrinkles out of a polical heresy.

The world views with admiration the sublime spectacle of 70,000,000 freemen declaring overwhelmingly for the substantial principles of National integrity. The people have demonstrated their ability to govern themselves by law and order.

We have it upon the authority of Evangelist Dwight L. Moody that "God always stops a man's mouth before He saves him." Salvation would thus appear to be much nearer to certain other defeated political managers than it is to Marion Butler.

Mark A. Hanna has proved that he is a thoroughly able manager. The campaign has been conducted by a General. The country thanks him.

The restoration of prosperity will be gradual, of course, like recovery of a patient from a protracted illness, but it will come, and come to stay.

Who would ever imagined that "Maryland, My Maryland," was a Republican tune? But it sounds all right.

It is only once in a long while that a campaign of lies can succeed in this country.

☞The foundation of American life is the American home.

WATSON'S MISSING LETTER.

Ex-Candidate Watson's long missing letter accepting the Populist nomination for Vice-President has at last been made public, and while it amounts to little more than a posthumous arraignment of the popocratic cause, there can be no doubt that its publication during the campaign would have added largely to the friction and heat of the contest. His letter, which bears date of October 14, distinctly warned Chairman Butler that Sewall's continuance on the ticket would lead to defeat, and that the whole free silver cause would go to smash unless the Populists were more fully recognized in the management of the campaign. In view of events that have happened since this letter was written, Mr. Watson may justly claim the honor of having produced the largest case of "I-Told-You-So" of the entire year.

GOVERNOR RUSSELL.

Despite the fulminations of "poor old man" Dockery, the embittered tirades of Guthrie and the venomous attacks of the Democratic press, Daniel L. Russell will occupy the Gubernatorial Chair of this State for the coming four years. For him it is a great victory, and for his friends a gratifying vindication. The CAROLINIAN felt sure that no mistake was being made in advocating and helping to nominate him; it predicted that he would be elected, and it now predicts that every interest of the State will be carefully guarded and that he will prove to be one of the ablest and best Governors the State has ever had.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 13, 1896.

Whether the Republicans will decide to attempt to put the Dingley Emergency Tariff Bill, which was passed by the House at the last session of Congress, through the Senate at the coming session, or will wait until the Fifty-fifth Congress meets and then pass a general tariff, is a question yet to be decided and circumstances will probably make the decision. If the Republicans are to control the Senate after the 4th of March the chances would be against the passing of the Dingley bill at the coming session, as that bill is only intended to be in effect two years from the date it becomes a law, and while it is an excellent emergency measure and would serve the purpose for which it is intended—to bring the revenues of the government up to its expenditures—it is not what most Republicans would desire as a permanent law. If the Republicans are not to control the Senate after the 4th of March it is probable that the Dingley bill will be pushed, as whatever else may be done it is absolutely necessary that the revenue of the country be increased, for one of the certainties of the near future is that bonds will not be issued by the McKinley administration.

The opposition are doing more worrying over the probable make-up of President McKinley's Cabinet than the Republicans are. Republicans know that Maj. McKinley's wide experience in Congress and his extensive acquaintance with members of the party in all sections of the country make it well-nigh impossible for him to make any mistakes in selecting his Cabinet, consequently they are perfectly satisfied with the out look and there is no douht that they will be equally well satisfied with the Cabinet when it is announced. The party has so many available men that Maj. McKinley's greatest difficulty will be to decide which of them he shall honor with Cabinet portfolios. Men who have talked with him within the week say that he has yet given the matter no serious consideration. There is plenty time to decide upon the personnel of his administration.

The absurdity of the gossip alleging that a gold Democrat would be invited to become a member of President McKinley's Cabinet has become so apparent that it has been dropped, and the gossippers have come down to the common sense and probable basis of saying that several gold Democrats of prominence will be given judicial and diplomatic positions under the coming Republican administration. That will be all right and no Republican will raise any objections to the bestowal of such honors in payment for the work and votes of the gold Democrats, but a place in the Cabinet would be a horse of another color entirely.

The agreement of Great Britian to arbitrate the Venezuelan boundary dispute is much more than a triumph of the principles of peace. It is an official acknowledgement of the correctness of the Monroe doctrine as laid down and maintained by every President of the United States since Monroe, and when this acknowledgement comes from the greatest European power it makes it practically certain that the Monroe doctrine, which we were told not long ago by English authorities had no status as international law, will in future be recognized as binding upon all nations. While few Americans ever had the slightest doubt of the binding nature of the Monroe doctrine, because of their knowledge that behind it was a possible army of 10,000,000 of the best fighting men the world ever saw, it is far better to have obtained its recognition through the peaceable channels of diplomacy than at the cannon's mouth.

Senator Butler, chairman of the Populists National Committee continues to nag the Democrats by means of newspaper interviews. He either thinks or pretends to think that the Populists will absorb all the silver Democrats before another national campaign is opened. In his latest interview he says the Democratic party is bigger today than it will be at the opening of the next campaign and that the people's party will continue to grow bigger every day; and, while he doesn't say so, there is no doubt that he regards himself as the biggest Populist in the whole puddle.

Condensed Testimony.

Cha's B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough Remedy. J. D. Brown, prop. St James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrell, Baldwinsville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs Hemming, 222 E. 25th street, Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free trial bottles at Alex. Wadsworth's Drug Store.

Sardou's Hobby.

Sardou's hobby is building himself houses. In this way he delights in spending his wealth. On Mount Boron, on the outskirts of Nice, stands a huge erection of stone, dwarfing the surrounding villas, which is merely the foundation of a palatial residence which the eminent dramatist commenced, and after an expenditure of some $200,000 was prevented from completing on the ground that the structure would interfere with the outlook of the fort perched on the hill behind.

Expert Opinion.

The white gull, circling high in the air over the sand dunes along the lonely shore of the lake, looked with pitying contempt at the wreck of the flying machine far below.

"In my opinion," said the bird, "no inventor will ever hatch a real flying machine out of his head. The human skull is too thick."—Chicago Tribune.

AN HONEST STATEMENT.

Ever since God said to Adam: "In the Sweat of thy Brow, thou shalt eat bread," the poor classes of humanity, the world over, have indeed eaten bread by the sweat of their brow. To toil and labor, labor and toil; day in and day out; year in and year out, has been their lot.

Never in the history of our government have the laborers, the farmers and the fishermen come so far from getting a just compensation for their labors and for what they have placed on the markets as at the present time. On account of the financial depression and general business stagnation for months past, they have been paid only starvation wages and prices. Knowing these to be facts, it would be morally wrong as well as grossly unjust for any merchant to charge the people exortitant prices for their goods.

If anyone has anything to buy for himself or family, and wants to spend their money with merchants who are not trying to get rich, but who are trying to make an honest living by dealing honestly with their fellow man, go to the New Store, Gold & Hooper, Water street. Their goods have just been bought in Northern cities at lowest wholesale cash prices. Everything new; nothing old and shopworn. And as their expense are light, they are able to sell for less than any other merchant in town.

Their stock consists of Men's Boy's and Youths' Ready-made Clothing, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, Ladies' and Gents' Furnishing Goods, Dry Goods, Notions, Jewelry and everything else to be found in a first class Dry Goods Store.

Prophecy and Fulfillment.

"On behalf of those stalwart workmen and all the vast army of American toilers, that their employment may be certain, their wages just, their dollars the best of the civilized world; on behalf of the dismantled chimney and the deserted factory at its base, that the furnaces may once more flame, the mighty wheels revolve, the whistle scream, the anvils ring, the spindles hum; on behalf of the thousand cottages round obout, and all humble homes of this broad land, that comfort and contentment may again abide, the firesides glow, the women sing, the children laugh; yes, and on behalf of that American flag and all it stands for and represents, for the honor of every stripe, for the glory of every star that its power may fill the earth and its splendor span the sky, I nominate that loyal American, Christian gentleman, soldier, Statesman, William McKinley, of Ohio."—From speech of Senator Thurston, seconing Mr. McKinley's nomination.

G. W. Clark, McGregor, Texas, says: "Our little baby daughter has been cured of a violent case of summer diarhoea from teething by the use of Dr. King's Royal Germeteur. She had been reduced nearly to a skeleton, The first duse of Germeteur helped her and now she is well again.

Rheumatism Cured.

Mr. W. E. Shepherd, of the dry goods house of Davidson, Lowe & Shepherd, Athens, Ga., says of Royal Germetuer: "For four long months I was flat of my back, unable to move a single limb of my body without assistance. Nothing gave me relief. I had given ug all hopes of recovery until the great remedy was given me. The first week I began to improve, and in less than thirty days was on my feet attending to my duties. I am now able to work twelve hours out of every twenty-four, and sell as many dry goods as any man in Georgia.

We do not pity any of the defeated Democratic candidates in the State. The election frauds and intolerance of the party in the past and the desperate attempts to get in by means of bogus tickets this year ought to forever defeat any party on earth.—Progressive Farmer.

A BLIND TRAVELER.

He Finds His Way Alone Along the Roads of California.

Gilbert Watkins is the name of a blind man who lives on Brush street, near Taylor. Although he is so blind he cannot tell day from night, even though he looks directly at the sun, it does not interfere with his ability to travel. In fact, Watkins does more traveling than most other people except drummers. And, furthermore, he does the most of it without any one to guide him.

Watkins, when he is in the city, can be seen standing on the corners of some of the down town streets, where he sells notions and other small articles in order to gain a livelihood. But he does not stay long at a time, because he likes to visit different places and meet different people. He always attends the different celebrations and fiestas, where he says he is sure to enjoy himself.

When Watkins wants to go any place the first time, he gets some one to guide him, if possible, but after that he can go alone at any time he wishes. He has been over nearly all of the roads in California, and only a few months ago he walked from this city to Los Angeles by himself. He says he is always well treated and finds people only too willing to tell him what is going on.

According to Watkins' story, he is able to do these remarkable things solely by his memory and says that he can be taken anywhere and made to turn as many corners as desired, and that he can find his way back without assistance. In this respect he seems to have the same faculty a cat is said to have and exercises it in the same way.

When the blind man desires to go to a certain place he has never been taken before, he is led to it, and as he goes along he takes mental note of all the objects he passes. Here is a rough crossing, here some asphaltum pavement, here a dirt road with some stones on it, here some water, etc. When he wants to return, he takes them in reverse order and has no trouble.

"The reason I can do this," he says, "is because I don't see a lot of things that distract me. You could do the same thing easy enough. Maybe in a mile I would only have to remember a few objects. It is just the same as if a man who could see was taken through a dark alley, but every once in awhile was given a glimpse of his surroundings by a light being turned on. He could remember what he saw without any trouble, but if he saw a thousand other things he could not. I know just how many steps it is from the corner to where I live and can walk to the place without even using my cane. Of course I am helped a great deal by the people I pass, because they know I am blind and always make room for me."—San Francisco Call.

A CASE OF TELEPATHY.

One Lady Appeared In a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters. The house was furnished and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore it was decided not to use a certain large, long room with cupboards along one side (which had all been locked and sealed up with tape) in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away. One evening one of the daughters, going to her room, saw an old lady wrapped in a shawl walking along the passage in front of her. The old lady appeared to know her way and hurried on without hesitation into the unused room. The girl called her sister, and they followed the dame into the room. But all was silent. No one was there. The dust lying about showed no signs of footprints.

Shortly after the same young lady was reading on the hearth rug by firelight. Looking up, she beheld the old lady standing in the doorway watching her. Greatly frightened, she sprang up, and, rushing down stairs, was found fainting at the drawing room door. At last the family returned to Dublin. One day when a friend was calling the curious incident which I have narrated was referred to. The young lady very unwillingly told her experiences. The visitor seemed much struck and asked for an accurate description of the old lady. "For," said she, "that house belonged to two old ladies, sisters, and when they let their house they went to reside at Geneva. One of them, answering exactly to the description you have given, died at the time you saw her appear."—Realm.

NOT GOOD EVIDENCE.

It Is an Easy Matter to Change Photographic Pictures.

Photographic copies of an original, it is claimed, are not acceptable as proof before a court, inasmuch as the photographs may easily be changed to suit the wish. Expert picture makers can take a photograph, and by various processes secure a composite containing several features desired that did not exist in the original.

A celebrated photographer of this city declared that it is an easy matter to change photographs. Pictures can be made to show the body of one person with the head of another, or it is possible to insert certain features desired in a photograph. The producers of photographs often use the form of one subject and the head of another in order to obtain the most symmetrical results and thus form a sort of composite picture.

"By the use of nitric acid," he said, "any part of the silver print photograph, the one commonly used, can be erased. If the picture were a platinum print, which is unlikely, the same effect could be secured by the use of aquaregia or a liquid composed of a mixture of nitric and muriatic acids, which acts as a solvent for gold or platinum prints. It was shown that original signatures could be erased and others pasted or copied thereon and then a photograph taken which would seem that the result was a perfect photograph of an original paper.—Philadelphia Call.

Sunday In Chinatown.

The population of Chinatown on Sundays is about 4,000 or 5,000, on weekdays very much less. The difference may be accounted for by the fact that on Sunday the Chinese from all parts of New York and Brooklyn, and from Long Island, New Jersey and Connecticut towns, flock to Chinatown to visit their friends and to do business. Since the American Sunday does not permit laundry work on that day, the laundrymen seize upon it as a general recreation day and go to Chinatown by hundreds. This, therefore, is the great business day of that region, and all the stores are open and every employee is constantly occupied.

Here the laundrymen buy all their dry groceries, their clothing and their laundry supplies. Here, also, are the great family headquarters whither comes the mail from China and where the Chinese meet to discuss the affairs of their people and incidentally the various phases of American anti-Chinese legislation.—"The Chinese of New York," by Helen F. Clark, in Century.

WINGED SEEDS.

The Wind Plays an Important Part In the Spreading of Plants.

The usual way for seeds to be carried is by the wind. Sometimes they are so small and light as to be easily wafted by the breezes. This is the case with the seeds of the moccasin flowers and meadow pinks and the other beautiful plants of our woods and bogs called orchids. And the tiny bodies, like atoms of dust, termed "spores," that answer to seed in ferns and mosses and toadstools, are borne away by the lightest breath of air. But most seeds are themselves too heavy for this. So they are oftimes provided with thin, broad wings that carry them before the wind as a sail carries a boat. The pairs of "keys" that hang in clusters from the maple trees in spring are such winged fruits. When ripe, they float slowly to the ground, or if a high wind is blowing they are carried farther from the tree. The ash has thick bunches of winged fruits much like these, but single. The elm has a thin, papery border all around its small seeds, which makes them quite conspicuous as they hang on the branchlets before the leaves have come out.

Numbers of plants have about the seeds delicate hairs or bristles that take the place of wings. A dandelion "clock," or a head of thistle down, is a bunch of seeds, each with a circle of fine bristles on the summit. When the seeds are ripe, along comes a breeze, and, puff, away go the seeds, hanging from their tufts of bristles as the basket hangs from a balloon. The bunches of long silky hairs that come from a bursting pod of milkweed and fill the air around have each their precious cargo in the shape of a small brown seed. The seeds that ripen in heads on the clematis after the handsome purple flower leaves have fallen have long feathered tails, like slender bird plumes, that do the same work that is given to the silk of milkweed. The "cotton" around the seeds of the willows at the riverside and of the poplars along city streets serves the same useful purpose. Cotton itself is only a bunch of fine white hair around the seed. Ages before men thought of spinning it and weaving it into cloth it was making itself useful to the cotton plant by helping to scatter its seeds.—"How Plants Spread," by Thomas H. Kearney, Jr., in St. Nicholas.

Wednesday, November 18, 1896.

Hurrah for the First District!

In members elect to the House, it stands "16 to 1!"

Sporting parties from the North are beginning to arrive.

Weather prophet Hicks fore casts a cold December—"one of the most severe experienced for years."

When Skinner said the nomination of Lucas was only "a joke," the latter sneered. It proved to be a huge one.

Thanksgiving is coming! Goose or gobbler, which will it be for the editor's dinner? He isn't at all particular.

We attended the Edenton Fair on Wednesday. There was a creditable exhibit but the attendance was not as large as expected.

In this Congressional District the Populists cast 3,288 votes: in this Senatorial District 1,120 votes, and in this County 123 votes.

We learn that Mr. Boehm, one of the Dakota colonists, who returned a few months ago, writes that he expects to come back here again next fall.

Now that there are no Democratic Returning Boards to throw out Republican precincts, the First Senatorial District shows where a fair vote and an honest count places it.

Mr. Root, of South Dakota, who purchased the Dawson place and Pailin farm a few miles from the City last spring, has arrived with his family and taken possession.

When we met Guthrie in August at Edenton we frankly told him that he "wasn't in it." He said that we were mistaken. He now realizes that we were not.

A private Company having leased the grounds and buildings of the Albemarle Park Association for the occasion, are holding a "Fair" this week. It began yesterday and will continue four days.

Rev. B. C. Krupp, of Bethlehem, Pa., has purchased the "Cottage," on Riverside, with a few acres adjoining. He will move the building back on a line with Mr. Preyor's residence and remodel it. We understand that he expects to locate here in February.

Remarked a prominent Populist since the election: "A number of the Populists in this county refused to follow the gang that attempted to lead us into the Democratic camp. We couldn't stultify ourselves by supporting a man for the Legislature who, if elected, would use his influence and vote to undo all the reform legislation our party fought for and aided in passing."

Now that the election is over and the cause for which we so earnestly contended for has won, we take this occasion to say that we entertain no feeling of unkindness toward any man; that we simply wrote, spoke and acted as we believed our position and duty required. Our warfare was political, not personal. As the question is now decided, let one and all settle down to business.

Since the election we have reports from every county in regard to the campaign made by the "Old Man Eloquent," Hon. John B. Respass, the McKinley Elector, and the consensus of Republican opinion is that his canvass has been the most thorough, the ablest and the most satisfactory ever made in the District. He not only awakened interest and aroused enthusiasm but he largely aided in unifying the Republican forces.

The CAROLINIAN is informed that the acting Chairman of the Populist Committee of this county justifies his see-saw political action by saying that his purpose was "to teach a lesson" to a couple of men. Well, really! To a man "up a tree" it appears that as a schoolmaster in political manipulation he isn't a success; that the result showed he needed a "lesson" or two himself, and one of them he has learned, to wit, that he isn't a very influential factor in the politics of Pasquotank!

Three cheers for the Elizabeth City Naval Reserves! The CAROLINIAN is proud of them. In the contest for the gold medal, offered by the Edenton Fair Association last week, they won the prize. They had as competitors the Military Companies of Hertford, Edenton and Plymouth. Their fine appearance, soldierly bearing and efficiency in drill were favorably commented on by the crowd of visitors present. In the absence of Captain Griffin, who was detained by important legal business, the command fell upon Lieutenant Ferebee, aided by Corporal Winder. They both proved fully equal to the occasion.

Hanna was not such a soft Mark after all.

Shoes, Shoes, Shoes, at rock bottom prices at Fowler & Co.'s

The Methodist Conference meets at Kinston on December 9th.

Some genuine bargains in Men's and Boy's Clothing at Fowler & Co.'s

Mr. Bryan appears to have met with a rear-end collision.

How are you off for Blankets. We have 'em, the best to be had from 50c the pair to $5. Moses Weisel.

The Boy Orator will now have a chance to study the money question.

The 15c Windsor Ties at The Fair are equal to any in town at 25c.

The venerable Arthur Jordan, residing near Winfall, died on the 9th inst, aged 76 years.

Good values in Dress Goods and Hosiery at Fowler & Co.'s

Now let us try to forgive and forget—forget Bryan and forgive the men who voted for him.

That Kid Glove Moses Weisel is selling for 79c is a corker.

A young man named John Berry, of Camden, while out gunning a few days ago, fell from a tree he had climbed, badly hurting himself.

A "continuous performance" of bargains is shown at Moses Weisel's.

A fire at Gatesville on the 10th inst destroyed the Riddick Hotel, Cross's Grocery, Brown's Store, Sheriff Riddick's residence and other buildings.

Men's all wool Sweaters 75c at Fowler & Co.'s.

The CAROLINIAN contends that while this country should be an asylum for the oppressed of other nations always, it should be an almshouse never.

We now have a full line of Fall and Winter Samples of Wannamaker & Brown and have suits made to order and a fit guaranteed. The Fair.

The largest stock of Silks, Velvets and Trimmings at The Fair.

Ambrose Staples, of Shiloh, on hanging up a dressed hog a few days ago was instantly killed by the gambrel giving way on one side and striking him on the head.

Its a peach! that $1.25 Overcoats for boys at Moses Weisel's, sizes from 5 to 15 years, with capes.

The largest stock of Dress Goods in all the latest novelties at The Fair.

The vote in the Second Senatorial District was: For McCaskey, Pop. 8,592; Yeager, Rep. 8,393; Gaylord, Dem. 6,415 and 6,450 for Thompson, Dem. The average cooperation majority is 1,978. That will do!

A wise man doesn't like to admit that he has been foolish twice in the same way. If he forgets to buy his Neckties of Moses Weisel one day, he manages to drop into the store the next time he needs a supply.

Window Shades in all colors at greatly reduced prices at The Fair.

Backbone endows life with dignity. It raises men from ignorance and want to high, useful and commanding positions. It raises men out of animalism into self-mastery. It fills men with grit. It never stops at trials and hindrances; it goes through them. It stems every opposing tide. It avoids ruts. It allows no crying over spilled milk. It puts the shoulder to the wheel and pushes. It never says quit.

For Gum Boots and Oil Clothing write to Fowler & Co. Bottom prices.

Shad Nets, Gill Twine or Seine Twine in large quantities or small quanties at Fowler & Co.'s.

"That man has the talent of silence," was the remark made recently about a successful man who rarely opened his lips, and who was, his enemies declared, actually stupid; but who, by virtue of an imposing presence and great taciturnity, had acquired a reputation for excellent judgment. "Talk is silver, but silence is golden" is often said; many a dull man has successfully covered up his deficiencies under a mantel of taciturnity, and one almost always hears the gratifying clause when such an one is mentioned, "He is very quiet, but he has a great deal in him which he does not show." People are apt to take it for granted that if a man does not talk he does all the more thinking. In some cases this is undoubtedly true, and silent men are often very deep and clever thinkers; but in the majority of cases nothing to say betokens a paucity of ideas, and a dull man is rarely an able one.

The Ladies Mcintoshes at The Fair were bought at a big bargain and you can get the benefit of it.

The man who doesn't turn up at Moses Weisel's Gents Furnishing Goods sale is very apt to be turned down by judges of elegant styles.

The celebrated "Crack Proof" Children and Misses Shoes at The Fair are just the thing for school. Try a pair.

The man who has no happiness in life is one who doesn't wear Moses Weisel's perfect fitting shirts.

LOCAL MENTION.

The sun rose this morning at 6:39 and will set to-night at 4:51.—The steamer Lizzie Burrus is on the ways at Willey's ship yard for repairs.—Miss Rebecca Murry, of Fairfield, who has been visiting Miss Annie Spencs, on South Road street and made many friends while here, has returned to her home.—If some people would laugh more their doctor's bills would be less.—Miss Nellie Duckworth, who has been spending the Summer with her sister, Mrs. W. C. Glover, on West Church street, has returned to her home in Tennessee.—There is such a thing as helping people until they become helpless.—Ex-Solicitor J. H. Blount, now of Greenville, was in the city on Thursday. He gave us a call.—"How long are you going to visit us?" little Willie inquired of his aunt. "I havn't the least idea. Why do you ask?" "'Cause mother wanted to know."—Mr. Thomas C. Davis has moved into the Hinton house on Main street.—Cynic says that the more a young man notices how how his girl's hair is done up the less he loves her.—There is a great deal of time wasted in trying to avoid the inevitable.—

We warned Lucas, the political sinner,
That he'd be badly beaten by Skinner;
The counties he carried number just two,
The canvass for him was a Waterloo.

—Mr. W. C. Harrison has just built two neat houses on Pearl street. Several other houses are in course of erection.—A man has crossed the divide when it occurs to him that there is no use trying to save any money.—Solicitor W. J. Leary, of Edenton, called on Thursday and paid his respects. He was on his return from Dare Court.—We acknowledge a pleasant visit on Friday from Mr. P. H. Haller, of Flint, Michigan, who, with his son, arrived here last week. Mr. Haller is an intelligent gentleman and is favorably impressed with our country and climate. He has gone back, but his son will remain here during the winter—"Why," asked the Sweet Young Thing, "why do they say that love is of the heart?" "To show," said the Doleful Bachelor, "that the brains have nothing to do with it."—A certain Preacher is thus described by the Poet:

To him the impulse of a kindly deed
Was more than any article of creed;
And whosoever chanced his face to scan,
Forgot the preacher but revered the man.

—Kramer Bros. & Co. had a fine exhibit at the Edenton Fair.—A Colored Hook and Ladder Company is being organized to be auxiliary to and under the direction of the Fire Department.—"Every time that girl's best young man turns up I get turned down," complained the parlor lamp.—After the pangs of a crushing defeat in the varied attempts to reduce the legal vote of this town, we do not find it in our heart to begrudge the Democratic Chairman any satisfaction Chairman Madley's "thanks" may afford him. Oh, no!—Mr. A. C. Hathaway, of the Hathaway Bros., Jewelers, has been in New York placing orders for holiday goods.—The Naval Reserves were tendered and enjoyed an oyster supper on Thursday night at the home of Mr. R. J. Mitchell, and on Friday night at the residence of Mr. J. B. Blades. The gallant boys deserve it all.—Rev. Dr. C. S. Blackwell attended the Baptist State Convention at Morganton last week. He was elected President of the Baptist Young People's Union of the State.—The following from the Versifier is good advice:

Smile a little, smile a little,
As you go along,
Not alone when life is pleasant,
But when things go wrong.
Care delights to see you frowning,
Loves to hear you sigh,
Turn a smiling face upon her,
Quick the dame will fly.

—"Mama, they say that history repeats itself, don't they?" asked little Johnny. "Yes, dear." "Well why don't it repeat itself when I'm trying to learn it?" was what the little fellow wanted to know.—Mr. W. M. Biggs, of Cresswell, was in the city on Friday. He called and entertained us with a very satisfactory chat. He was a Union soldier and is a staunch Republican.—Rev. Dr. F. H. Johnston attended the annual session of the Presbyterian Synod at Newbern last week.—Harry Pruschanskin and Bert Blackwell, both of this city, won the first and second prizes at the Edenton Fair in the Bicycle race.—The order in relation to Bicycle riding on the sidewalks appears to be not fully understood. All riders are required to stop or dismount on meeting or passing pedesterians, and the speed is limited to five miles an hour. The penalty, which will be enforced, is $25.—Mrs. Sidney J. Peters, of Norfolk, Va., is visiting the family of Dr. W. J. Lumsden, on Road street.—Hums a very happy young man:

I asked her quick to marry me,
As quick as you'd say "scat,"
But when she gave to me her "yes,"
'Twas quicker far than that.

—Hello, Chairman Wilson! Which is most entitled to respect by honorable men, an honest Negro or a dishonest white man? Answer.—"The ice was broken," eh? Yes, and the fellow who broke it tumbled in and was politically drowned!—W. S. Bartlett, Sheriff of Camden, gave us a call on Monday. He says: "We met the enemy and they are ours."—Pay your Corporation taxes.—How very much disappointed the Bryanites are that there wasn't a big colored parade and jollification after the election. The colored people of Elizabeth City have acted with commendable prudence throughout the entire campaign.—The ladies of the several churches in the city will hold a Feast at the Court House to-night for the benefit of the Armenian sufferers.—Dr. George W. Brooks, of Sunbury, has been spending a few days visiting his mother, Mrs. Judge Brooks, on South Road street.—Mr. Johnson Morrisett, a native of Camden, but who left about four years ago, and is now residing in Scotland Neck, is here on his first visit since he went away.—The newly organized Fire Company will give an Oyster Supper at the Town Hall to-morrow night for the purpose of raising needed funds. Let them be liberally patronized.—We had a call yesterday from J. B. Jennett, esq., Superior Court Clerk of Dare County.—Dr. A. T. Aydlett, who has been spending some time in New York, returned yesterday. He will locate here.—Hon. J. E. Reyburn, M. C., of Philadelphia, was in the City yesterday.

Wonderful Vitality of Insects.

It is a standing puzzle to the entomologists and others interested in the study of insects how the frail little creatures of the mosquito and the butterfly order can brave the cold of an arctic winter and yet retain their vitality. Of late some light has been thrown on this wonderful faculty of the insect world by the experiments of a London naturalist. He took the larva of the common milkweed butterfly and exposed it to an artificial blast sixty-eight degrees below zero. Upon taking it out of the range of this artificial blizzard and gradually thawing the creature out the naturalist was surprised to find that the worm was able to creep in less than a half hour afterward.

According to the testimony of all the arctic explorers, butterflies and mosquitoes, as well as a great variety of other insects, have been found flitting joyously about in the highest latitudes ever penetrated by man. It is even declared by those who have made tours of exploration to the far north that the mosquitoes of those regions are the largest and healthiest varieties of that species of pest that has ever been discovered by man.—St. Louis Republic.

A Substitute for Glass.

"The first successful substitute for glass," says an architect in the Washington Times, "is tectorium, a gelatinous composition. It has not appeared in this country at all as yet, but it is being introduced in Europe. This gelatinous substance is given rigidity by being spread on a galvanized iron web, which holds the sheet in any desired shape, but does not obstruct the passage of light. It is translucent, but not transparent, and can be stained in such a manner as to exactly imitate stained glass. It cannot be broken or softened by the rays of the sun, but is flexible and easily bent into any desired shape. When unstained it at first is yellow, but on exposure to the sun it turns white, at the same time becoming harder and more durable. Like glass, it is a poor conductor of heat. It is lighter than glass, and on this account is well adapted for roofs. Unless it can be made transparent it can never hope to entirely supersede glass, but its cheapness and superiority to glass in other directions are securing for it extensive sales for factory windows, skylights for hothouses, roofing and like purposes."

Curiosities of a Bake Shop.

The largest loaves of bread baked in the world are those of France and Italy says the Cleveland World. The "pipe" bread of Italy is baked in loaves two and three feet long, while in France the loaves are made in the shape of very long rolls, four or five feet in length, and in many cases even six feet.

The bread of Paris is distributed almost exclusively by women, who go to the various bakehouses at 5.30 a. m., and spend about an hour brushing and polishing the loaves.

After the loaves are thoroughly cleaned of dust and grit, the woman proceeds on the round of her customers. Those who live in apartments or flats find their loaves leaning against the door. Restaurateurs and those having street entrances to their premises find their supply of the staff of life propped up against the front door. The wages earned by these bread carriers vary from fifty cents to 63½ cents of our money, and their day's work is completed by 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning.

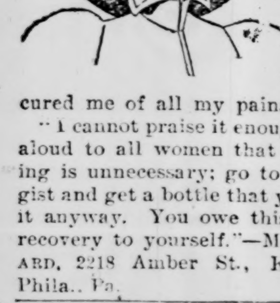

Coal Tar Paints.

Coal tar is recommended by a French report as a substitute for oil as a vehicle for colors in the cheapest kinds of painting. The coal tar paints cover a surface one-fourth larger than the same weight of oil colors, dry very quickly and require no varnishing. They may be applied on fresh plaster, damp walls, cement, wood or metal, and the carbolic acid they contain gives them decided disinfecting qualities.

LOST IN A LAKE WRECK.

The Captain Drunk and Six Men Were Drowned.

FATAL END OF A DEBAUCH.

The Skipper of the Schooner Waukesha Refused to Run for a Harbor or to Beach His Craft—Locked the Signals Up—Only One Man Saved—Liquor Flowed Even While the Vessel Was Sinking.

MUSKEGON, Mich. (Special).—In the darkness and fierce storm of Saturday night, without a soul on shore being a whit wiser, the 800-ton three-master schooner Waukesha went to pieces off this port and six men there met their death. Only one man of a crew of seven, commanded by a drunken captain, reached shore.

The schooner arrived off the harbor from Ludington about 4 o'clock p. m. and flew a flag for a tug. The life saving crew sent word uptown and the tug Ryerson came down, but the men in charge hesitated to go out in face of the fierce storm. The Waukesha gave no other signals and the life savers did not go out.

At 1.30 o'clock a. m. a patrolman reported wreckage, and when day broke the lookout saw only a dark object moving in the heavy sea about a mile out. Captain Wood was notified and a surf boat, which was sent out found a sailor alive in the rigging of the wrecked vessel. The man was taken to the station and to-night gave his version of the wreck in graphic style.

He said his name was Frank Delach, and that there had been seven men on board—the captain, mate, four seamen and the cook, a colored man, but he did not know the names of any of them.

The schooner, owned by Captain Duncan Corbett, left Ludington Friday with 600 tons of salt for South Chicago. Almost from the start the captain began drinking. About ten o'clock that night, with the sea running high, they sighted lights, about the location of which there was a dispute. The boat was leaking badly and all hands had to go to the pumps.

Every now and then, he said, the captain called in the mate and a sailor by the name of Fred, and gave them liquor, until the entire party was very drunk. When the vessel arrived off Muskegon the captain anchored, and, further than to hoist a flag for a tug, refused to send for any help. After fastening the foresail to keep it from threshing, the crew went back to the pumps and found four and a half feet of water in the hold. They had just resumed pumping when the captain called all hands to luncheon, after eating which the pumping was once more resumed.

The yawlboat and stern tackle went away soon after, and then the bar davit. The captain was asked to torch for a lifeboat, but refused. Then the boat began to sink, and the captain and mate, taking life preservers, went up into the forerigging. The sailors followed as quickly as possible.

When the boat had a list of about three feet, the forward mast went over and all fell off, the cook and the drunken sailor, Fred, being swept into the sea. The other two masts went in short order.

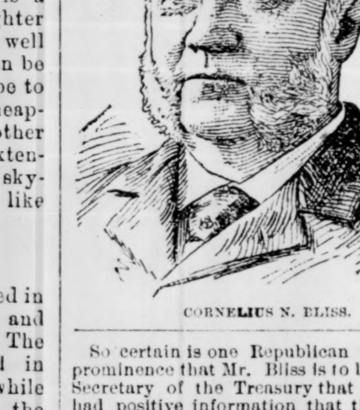

The captain continued his drinking until he was helplessly drunk, and about 10 o'clock he rolled overboard and sank. An hour later the mate went overboard. Delach and one sailor were then all that were left.

About 5 in the morning Delach's companion became benumbed by the cold. Delach held on to him as long as possible, but finally lost his hold, and the unfortunate man fell into the water. The lifeboat arrived half an hour later.

TREASURY FOR C. N. BLISS?

New York City Republican Leaders Say It's Settled.

Republican leaders in New York City say that it seems to be practically settled that Cornelius N. Bliss will be President McKinley's Secretary of the Treasury. It is understood that the President-elect has expressed a desire that Mr. Bliss accept the Treasury portfolio, and is anxious that his selection shall have the approval of the Republican organization in New York City and State.

CORNELIUS N. BLISS.

So certain is one Republican of National prominence that Mr. Bliss is to be the next Secretary of the Treasury that he said he had positive information that the appointment had been tendered and accepted.

Cornelius N. Bliss is in the wholesale dry goods business in New York City, and is interested as a stockholder and director in several banks and trust companies. For eight years he has been the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee.

There is a provision in the United States Revised Statutes which might cause him to give up some of his present business enterprises should he accept the place of Secretary of the Treasury. It provides that no person engaged in a commercial enterprise such as Mr. Bliss now carries on shall be elegible to the position to which he is destined by the above rumors.

Princeton Defeats Harvard.

Princeton defeated Harvard in the annual football game, on Soldier's Field, Cambridge, Mass., by a score of 12 to 0. It was a beautiful game from start to finish, and the Tigers won on their merits. Fifteen thousand spectators saw Harvard's defeat. The first half ended without either side having scored, although Harvard had a brisk wind in her favor. Princeton's goal was not seriously menaced at any time during the game, as even with the wind against him in the first half Baird, of Princeton, easily outclassed Brown, of Harvard, in punting.

A new bicycle chain of rawhide is attracting some attention. This chain is bound with steel plates on the side to prevent stretching, and it is said that it does not collect dust or need lubricating. It runs without noise and with less friction than a steel chain, and water will not injure it or cause rust. The material of the roller blocks is pighide, which looks and feels like boxwood.

A new and simple device for puncturing tires was discovered on the Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City, N. J., lately. It was a newspaper folded into a narrow strip, and struck full of tacks, with the points up. The wheelmen ran over one of these newspapers, and walked home. The first one did not discover the trick. The police were notified, and the bicycle squad was instructed to look out for the offenders.

TALLEST AND SMALLEST IN THE NAVY.

The Cruiser New York Has Both a Giant and a Midget Among Its Men.

In addition to many other distinctions the fast armored cruiser New York has in her crew the biggest man in the naval service and the smallest apprentice. The one is Thomas Moran, master-at-arms of the ship. A master-at-arms is the chief petty officer of a naval vessel, and is chief of police on the ship to which he is attached. Every master-at-arms is familiarly known to his shipmates as "Jimmy Leggs," and tradition says not why. The "Jimmy Leggs" of the New York is a New Yorker by birth. He has been thirty years in the naval service and bears an excellent record. He stands six foot four in his stocking feet, and weighs 173 pounds.

John Edward Heston, apprentice of the first class, claims the honor of being the smallest wearer of navy blue in the service. He has been in it eighteen months. He weighs seventy-eight pounds, and was but four feet nine inches in height at the time of enlistment. That was one-eighth of an inch short of the required height. But Heston had come all the way from his Missouri home to add his tiny strength to the new navy, and the recruiting officers thought it too bad to disappoint him. So the Navy Department was told about the matter, and an order was given to waive the regulation in his case. So he was enlisted.

THE ARBITRATION COMMISSION.

King Oscar of Sweden Will Probably Be the Fifth Member.

Information comes from the British Foreign Office that King Oscar II. of Sweden and Norway will be asked to act as the fifth member of the board of arbitration to which the Venezuelan boundary dispute will be referred for settlement.

KING OSCAR II. OF SWEDEN.

The officials of the Foreign Office takes exceptions to the statements which have been made that Venezuela will not be represented directly in the arbitration tribunal. The Foreign Office authorities suggest that there is still doubt whether Venezuela will have her own member of the tribunal. At any rate, Great Britain regards the United States' representatives as acting for Venezuela.

It is understood that Lord Esher will retire from the office of Master of the Rolls early in 1897, and that Sir Richard E. Webster, Attorney-General, will succeed him. Sir Robert B. Finley, Solicitor-General, will conduct the case of Great Britain before the Venezuelan Arbitration Commission. Sir Edward Clarke is debarred from taking any part in the proceedings, in consequence of his recent speeches unfavorable to the British contentions.

DEATH'S DOUBLE CALL.

Mr. and Mrs. Gulick, Both Deaf Mutes, Stricken on the Same Day.

A singular coincidence came to light a few days ago in Trenton, N. J., in the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Gulick, of 721 Adeline street.

Both were deaf mutes, and although they were separated by over one hundred miles, both died at the same time on Monday. Mrs. Gulick's death came while she was visiting friends at Somers Point, N. J., while her husband was killed by a train near Yonkers, N. Y.

Gulick, who was at one time employed at the New Jersey School for Deaf Mutes, had recently earned a living by traveling about the country selling pictures and books. The funerals of the two occurred from their home in Trenton.

Paris is going ahead in the matter of catering for cyclists. In the beautiful Bois de Boulogne there is now a special avenue, over a mile in length, which is exclusively reserved for cyclists.

The African Cyclist has just been started at Johannesburg, South Africa, where cycling is said to be in a very flourishing state.

Leon Garnier, an inventor of a chainless bicycle, was recently killed in Paris by an accident on his wheel. He was riding down a steep hill, lost control of his wheel and was thrown on his head.

Philadelphia has a few cycle path schemes on hand and the Park Commissioners of that city have recommended that $25,000 be spent in the construction of paths along the principal driveways of Fairmount Park.

It is said that the patrons of a large tourist agency, whose business is world embracing, will in future be mounted on bicycles when the tourists prefer that mode of locomotion in the excursions in foreign cities.

WEYLER FORCED TO FALL BACK.

Captain-General of Cuba Defeated in the Gobernadora Hills.

Captain-General Weyler, of Cuba, who has taken the field in person, had an engagement with rebel parties under Perico Delgardo and Colonel Diaz, and it was reported in Havana that the Spanish commander was forced to fall back. He is said to be encamped now in the Gobernadora Hills.

There is a great undercurrent of ill feeling against Weyler in Spanish circles in Havana. It is known he has been pushed to take the field, and it is generally expected that he will fail in his campaign against Maceo, who is reported to be very strongly fortified in the mountains.

The intelligence is that the capture of Guaimaro was of more importance than at first reported. When the news reached Havana it caused great excitement. It was only partially printed, but was wired to Madrid and made a sensation. It is said it so stirred the people that they forced the Government to oblige Weyler to take the field.

The Texas Floated.

The United States battleship Texas which sank mysteriously in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was pumped out and floated, and then put in dry dock. A change in the court of inquiry has been made, but the court will meet soon. Officials of the Navy Department in Washington believe that it will take six weeks to repair the Texas.

Iowa Savings Bank Closes.

The Iowa Savings Bank at Sioux City, Iowa, closed its doors. The steady withdrawal of deposits and inability to realize on securities except at a great sacrifice were the causes of the difficulty. The bank statement of October 10 showed $470,000 assets and $150,000 deposits. W. P. Manley has been appointed receiver.

The House Where Lincoln Died.

Under the operation of a law passed at the last session of Congress, the United States has just become possessed of the house in Washington opposite the old Ford's Theatre to which Lincoln was carried after the assassination, and where he died. The house will continue to be occupied by the Lincoln Memorial Association as a museum of relics of the martyred President.

Miles Urges Coast Defense.

General Miles in his annual report makes strong recommendations for provision for ample coast defense.

Newsy Gleanings.

Costa Rica wants immigrants.

New York City has 40,000 tenements.

Minnesota has a girls' agricultural school.

A New York mill makes 18,000 pies daily.

Pig-iron producers in Alabama report a stronger market.

Appalling destitution exists among the fisher folk of Labrador.

The cotton crop of Parahyba, Brazil, is said to be very large this year.

An international congress of specialists is being arranged for the discussion of leprosy.

One of the remarkable features of trade on the Pacific coast is the increase in shipments of flour to China and Japan.

The companies engaged in burglary insurance have adopted a uniform policy contract, but not a uniform rate.

The exports from the United States to Cuba have fallen off from $24,157,000 in 1893 to $7,530,000 for the fiscal year 1896.

There are 3837 colored pupils enrolled in the public schools of St. Louis, Mo., or about eight per cent. of the entire enrollment.

The enthusiasts of Monroe City, Mo., bought 1000 ounces of silver at sixty-five cents in October, believing that its value would double after election.

A young Englishman from Johannesburg, South Africa, now in Washington, says that shopkeepers in that town make at least 100 per cent profit. Everything is booming and wages are high.

IRELAND'S ORATOR COMING.

John E. Redmond, Leader of the Home Rulers, to Visit the United States.

John E. Redmond, the brainiest of Irish Parliamentary leaders, is to come to the United States during November, and will remain here while his lecturing tour proves profitable. His mission is not to raise funds or to say anything that will widen the breach between the two wings of the Irish party. Mr. Redmond has sacrificed his law business and his private fortune in giving his services to the cause of his native country, and takes advantage of this period of political inactivity in British affairs to make a lecture tour of the American continent. He is a young man of pleasing appearance, is a polished speaker and a sound thinker.

JOHN E. REDMOND, M. P.

John E. Redmond, like his brother William, began in the Irish cause before he was twenty-one years of age. He was one of the ablest lieutenants of Parnell and Michael Davitt in the early days, when the Irish Parliamentary party was a unit in all things. Mr. Redmond's lecture here will be "Fifteen Years in the British Parliament."

A GOLD CONGRESS.

The Republicans Get Control of Both Branches.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—Results of the election indicate that the combined Republican and Democratic gold standard men will have a majority in the United States Senate after the 4th of March, 1897.

Free silver has now 49 votes in the Senate. It will have but 44 after March 4, 1897.

The Republican victory includes probably the Legislatures of several other States now represented in the Senate by silver Democrats. In a few States gold Democrats will be elected to succeed silver Democrats, and at least one State (Pennsylvania) a gold Republican will succeed a silver Republican.

With the majority secured by the Republicans, that party will be able to carry any political legislation it desires through the Senate.

The House of Representatives will be Republican by nearly, if not quite, 50 majority. The Democrats come out of the election with very few solid delegations to the next House. Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, form the short line of "solid" States. The Populists have certainly doubled their strength in the present Congress, and it is possible they may increase by contests in close districts.

MR. M'KINLEY'S CABINET.

Speculation Already Begun as to His Official Advisers.

From now until March 4 speculation will be rife, and slates will, of course, repeatedly be made and broken, but until that time it will be impossible for any one to definitely know who will comprise the President-elect's political household. This is the first prophecy by Mr. McKinley's friends of those most likely to compose his Cabinet officers:

Secretary of State—Thomas B. Reed, of Maine.

Secretary of the Treasury—Cornelius N. Bliss, of New York.

Postmaster General—H. Clay Evans, of Tennessee.

Secretary of the Interior—John M. Thurston, of Nebraska.

Secretary of the Navy—Daniel H. Hastings, of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War—Russell A. Alger, of Michigan.

Secretary of Agriculture—Cyrus Leland, of Kansas.

Attorney General—Charles H. Grosvenor, of Ohio.

BUSINESS REVIVAL GENERAL.

Every Section of the Country Reports Improved Conditions Prevailing.

The revolution in business conditions resulting from the cessation of political agitation is increasing daily.

Special despatches from the principal cities of the country indicate that every branch of industry has received an impetus and that thousands of idle men have been given employment and as many more had their incomes doubled by being enabled to work full time, while scores of employers have made voluntary advances in wages.

Manufacturing has felt the spur most fully, but building, mining and banking have been included in the improvement.

DIVES TO DEATH IN JAIL.

A Heartbroken Prisoner Plunges From a Lofty Gallery in Buffalo.

Michael Winters, a heartbroken blacksmith, fifty-five years old, committed suicide by throwing himself from the walk that opens into the sixth tier of cells in the penitentiary at Buffalo, N. Y., to the stone flagging below.

He dived head first and struck the flagging with a crash. His skull was smashed and his neck snapped like a pipestem when he struck the stones. Death was instantaneous. He leaves a widow and eight children. He had been arrested for disorderly conduct and had only three days to serve.

Woman Suffrage Wins in Idaho.

He Found the Venus of Milo.

Henry Brest, through whom the Venus of Milo came into the hands of the French in 1818, has just died, over 100 years old, on the island of Milo, where he had married a Greek woman. He was present when the statute was unearthed and bribed the peasants to keep the discovery secret until the French Consul had arranged for its delivery to a French man-of-war.

Prominent People.

Theodore Thomas put in his vacation chopping wood at his cottage in the White Mountains. He says it is almost as good exercise as directing an orchestra of Wagnerian musicians.

While the Czar of Russia was in Paris he received 90,000 telegrams, aggregating 1,350,000 words.

Leopold de Rothschild was the largest winner this season on the English turf. After him comes the Prince of Wales, and then Lord Rosebery and the Duke of Westminster.

That much-talked-of little girl, the Queen of the Netherlands, is not as strong as might be, and it has been decided to take her to Italy, and perhaps to Egypt, for a good part of the winter.

It is reported from San Francisco that General Carlos Ezeta, the refugee President of Salvador, has taken up his residence in Oakland, Cal. His family is to join him from Guatemala.

A Unique Republic.

The republic of Goust is the smallest in the world. Andorra is an empire in comparison. Goust is about a mile square, and it houses 130 persons. It has been independent these 250 years.

It stands on top of a mountain by the Spanish border, near the edge of France, and it gets along very comfortably without ever mixing itself in other people's affairs, and without reading the evening papers, or, so far as we know, the morning ones. The delectable 130 govern themselves by a council, one member of which is selected to see that the business agreed upon is executed. Matters go along very smoothly, and Goustians are all the happier because nobody knows much about them, and therefore are unenvied.—Kansas City Times.

The Emperor Goes Armed.

Emperor William is probably the only European monarch who carries a revolver. Firmly convinced that he is going to die by the bullet of an anarchist—this fate having been prophesied to him long ago—he is determined to fight for his life, if necessary, and accordingly never is without his revolver. He is extremely skillful in the use of the weapon, and and his jaeger, or body servant, who accompanies him everywhere, inspects it every morning to make sure that it is in perfect working order.—Marquise de Fontenoy's Letter.

There were 207 suicides, including forty-six women, in Vienna during the first six months of this year. During the same period of last year there were only 106 cases.

The new Episcopal cathedral of the diocese of Tennessee, at Memphis, will cost $100,000 and will be built of stone taken from the quarries of the State.

A Cougher's Coffers

may not be so full as he wishes, but if he is wise he will neglect his coffers awhile and attend to his cough. A man's coffers may be so secure that no one can take them away from him. But a little cough has taken many a man away from his coffers. The "slight cough" is somewhat like the small pebble that lies on the mountain side, and appears utterly insignificant. A fluttering bird, perhaps, starts the pebble rolling, and the rolling pebble begets an avalanche that buries a town. Many fatal diseases begin with a slight cough. But any cough, taken in time, can be cured by the use of

Largest Copper Mines in the World.

"A great deal is being said and written concerning gold fields," said R. L. Price of San Quentin, Cal., at the Shoreham, "but I have seen no mention of the wonderful development of the San Fernando copper mines, near my home. And yet they are more valuable than almost any gold field known, being one of the largest, if not the largest, copper mines in the world.

"The mines were worked at least a century before California became a part of the United States, and the copper bells, altar equipments and crosses found in the old ruins of missions were made from ore that came from San Fernando. Until a few months ago there had never been an attempt to really explore the mines or to work them by modern methods. A few copper experts obtained control of it and have developed it sufficiently to show that the mines are among the richest in the world, the ore being of fine quality, easily mined and seemingly inexhaustible in quantity."—Washington Star.

An Italian student at Naples, Italy, made the original suggestion that on the occasion of the Prince of Naples's wedding all students who have failed in their last examinations should be "pardoned" and receive their degrees anyway.
